

In looking at comments who are opposed to the ARRL proposal, it appears that most of these are hams who operate 99% C.W. My comment would be to listen to any of the Novice bands, day or night, and you will find them mostly exempt from any type of activity. It seems to me that the ARRL proposal is a good one, and should be executed to relieve congestion in the phone portions of the band, especially on 75 and 40 meters. I too, operate C.W. a good portion of the time, but feel that we have enough spectrum for this mode of operation.
